Program Description
The AA in communication studies provides students with an academic core basic to a liberal arts education and facilitates ease of transfer to communication programs at four-year institutions. The degree provides analytical and critical thinking skills that render recipients to be effective members of their communities, both professionally and personally. A strength of the communication degree is that it allows students to target their studies toward areas of interest within the field. Areas such as public relations, rhetoric, political communication, interpersonal communication, organizational communication, mass media, and others are popular at four-year colleges and universities.

Students are encouraged to seek assistance from Communication Studies faculty in making course selections to suit their academic and career goals. Completion of the curriculum requirements will lead to the award of the AA.

Program Outcomes
Upon completion of this program, a student will be able to:

• Research, analyze, organize, and deliver oral and written presentations appropriate for diverse audiences, purposes and occasions.
• Solve problems and work effectively in groups and teams.
• Demonstrate an understanding of communication theory, research and application.
• Use communication skills to be an effective group member or leader.
• Analyze cultural similarities and differences as they affect, and are in turn affected by the process of communication.
• Identify and articulate an ethical perspective within and across various contexts and cultures.
